

Dear NAPA Friends and Family:

Do you all share the above quote?

- I'm very fortunate to believe I'm the right person in the right job and appreciated.
- I wish for you all to be just as happy with where you are in your career.

Do you all feel the above applies to you?

- If so, then you also am in the right place, doing the right job for this point in your career.

If you don't love your job, or not feeling your job is the right fit, then today is the beginning of the rest of your life.

- You own your career, you decide your destiny, you can take training, get additional certifications/skills, seek opportunities.
- NAPA has been sharing a lot of vacancies and detail opportunities, use them.
- Make an appointment to talk with your manager and others you work with to gain insight.

Today is Valentine's Day....

The Meaning of Valentine's Day

By Ashley M. Burdick | Online Editor

People often ask themselves, what is the meaning of Valentine's Day? Valentine's Day is an international and significant celebration of love amongst family, friends and loved ones. No matter the location, people from all over the world are celebrating this holiday in unison. At the University of Scranton, Valentine's Day has a significant meaning to faculty and students on campus.

Through life's endless struggles, challenges and happiest moments, Provost Jeff Gingerich, Ph.D. thinks of Valentine's Day as a time to pause and really think about and appreciate the people we love and that love us back.

Be one of the people that makes a difference in this world, help others feel valuable... cause every person is special.

Squeeze in a little time for yourself and the person/people/pet that loves you, love yourselves too with a treat today!

Best Wishes for today and every day going forward.
